Kelly Healthcare Resources Honors Michigan Healthcare Professional as National Nurse of the Year

TROY, Mich. (March 31, 2005) - In an effort to acknowledge the hard work and dedication of our nation's 2.7 million registered nurses, Kelly Healthcare Resources, a business unit of global staffing provider Kelly Services, Inc., today announced that Ryan Kelso will be honored as its Nurse of the Year during National Nurses Week, May 6-12, 2005.

Kelso was selected from more than 3,000 Kelly nurses as this year's national winner. He currently works as an occupational health nurse on assignment at a global automotive manufacturer in the metro Detroit area.

"Ryan exemplifies the highest standards of integrity and quality in the services we deliver to our customers," said Carla Perrotta, vice president and general manager, Kelly Healthcare Resources. "He is a model employee in the field of nursing and consistently displays a high level of professionalism, a strong work ethic and extraordinary dedication."

The National Nurse of the Year award was developed to recognize Kelly nurses for their outstanding work in the healthcare industry. The award, which will be presented to Kelso in conjunction with National Nurses Week in May, is based on performance feedback from customers of Kelly Healthcare Resources.
